LEAD FREE / RoHS

As you know, RoHS (Restriction of Hazardous Substances, Directive 2002/95/EC) restricts hazardous material content in products that will be sold into Europe. Other global regions and/or countries are either voluntarily adopting these requirements or proposing similar legislation.

Quest Components, Inc. is an independent distributor of electronic components and does not manufacture any of the products that it sells. Quest has no control over any processes or materials used in the designing, developing and/or manufacturing of the products we sell. Therefore, Quest can not certify component compliance to RoHS or any other Directive or Legislation restricting or requiring any substances and/or processes in the manufacturing of the components. Such representation and certification can only be obtained through the original manufacture. Quest Components, Inc. is able to direct customers to manufacturer's web sites, component specification sheets or other literature for our customers to make the sole determination of component compliance. Such services are provided as research materials and do not represent any certification by Quest Components, Inc.

Sincerely,

Quest Components, Inc. Management
